Case Study: Felicia Transport

Building Public Trust and Market Credibility from Day One

Overview

Felicia Transport is a Nigerian public transportation company focused on delivering safe, reliable, and modern mobility at scale. As a new company, Felicia needed more than visibility — it needed instant credibility, public trust, and a brand system capable of supporting long-term growth.

The Challenge

Entering a highly competitive and trust-sensitive market, Felicia faced a critical risk:without a strong and coherent brand system, the company could struggle to earn public confidence, attract early adopters, and position itself as a serious operator from launch. For a transport company, perception directly impacts adoption. Trust is not optional.

Our Approach

Sleeka designed and deployed a complete brand identity system including the logo, visual language, and brand applications across fleet, uniforms, signage, and digital platforms, built for consistency, recognition, and scale.

The Outcomes

1. The launch went viral: 42,000+ organic impressions within 48 hours of the brand reveal.

2. Over 1,200 positive engagements across social platforms during launch.

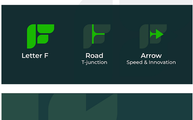
3. A 35% increase in website traffic within the first week.

Business Impact

Felicia entered the market with legitimacy from day one, reducing adoption risk and positioning the company for long-term growth.

Logo design

Concept: A bold, expressive combination mark inspired by the letter F, a road, and a forward-driven arrow. These elements flow seamlessly to convey motion, direction, and speed.



Fresh Colors

While many Nigerian brands rely on blue and red, we chose a bolder path. A fresh, modern palette anchored by green symbolizing growth, movement, and reliability.

Our Font Choices

We paired Galano Grotesque with Montserrat to create a clean, modern typographic system, bold enough for visibility and refined enough for clarity across all touchpoints.

Visual Outlook

A glimpse of the brand in action across mockups and merchandise, showing its presence, personality, and impact.
